AIMS & SCOPE

The smart agriculture is a concept that combines renewable energy and community-based education that can have an impact on an estimated 940 million population worldwide. Smart agriculture target IoT technologies in rural areas to develop innovative solutions to improve the quality of life and provide growth opportunities to its residents. The systems of the smart agriculture are essentially cyber-physical systems or CPS which are built using the Internet of Things (IoT). Research on 'IoT Technologies for Smart agriculture' encompasses sensors, cloud computing, edge computing, big data, wearable devices, artificial intelligence, fuzzy logics, cyber security, and related technologies for the energy-efficient, secure, and robust design. Thus, the development of IoT based Technologies for Smart agriculture needs the investigation of several factors such as energy efficiency, security, privacy, computational performance, reliability, and flexibility, ease of use, which necessitates rigorous research.

Full length original and unpublished research papers based on theoretical or experimental contributions related to the below mentioned tracks are invited for submission in this special session:
